

Stars to Come Out for the Genesis Awards

21st annual HSUS awards honor major news and entertainment media.

Posted: December 28, 2006, 5 a.m. EST

Emily and Zooey Deschanel presenting the Outstanding Animated Feature Film award to "Wallace & Gromit: The Curse of the Were Rabbit" at last year's event. Stars like Ed Asner, Ed Begley Jr., Mary Tyler Moore, Charlotte Ross, and Eric Roberts will be in Beverly Hills, Calif., on March 24 for the 21st annual Genesis Awards presented by HSUS.

The Genesis Awards honor major news and entertainment media for outstanding content that raises public awareness of animal-protection issues. Contenders for this year's major awards include "Charlotte's Web," "Happy Feet," HBO's "Dealing Dogs," "The Daily Show with Jon Stewart," "The Simpsons," "Larry King Live," "CBS Evening News with Katie Couric," "Anderson Cooper 360," and "CSI."

The Genesis Awards television special will air nationwide on Animal Planet. For tickets and tables, contact Leigh O'Bryan at the Hollywood Office of HSUS at (818) 501-2275.