

Misbehaving Dog Wins Free Training Session

Capture your dog on tape for a chance to win a training session with Tamar Geller.

Posted: August 11, 2008, 5 a.m. EDT

Does your dog deter mailmen or counter surf like a champion? If even your best efforts can't correct Max's bad habits, submit a two-minute video to the "Loved Dog Naughty to Nice" contest, sponsored by Freshpet, a refrigerated dog-food manufacturer that's introducing its The Loved Dog Treats. The video should show your dog's problem behavior and how it is affecting your life.

The grand-prize winner will receive a private training session with Tamar Geller, a famed dog trainer who has helped train the beloved companions of celebrities, including Oprah Winfrey. The training session will be taped and posted online to help other owners train their misbehaving dogs.

Five first-prize winners will receive a Loved Dog gift pack which contains a signed copy of Geller's book The Loved Dog, her training DVD, as well as a selection of Freshpet meals and dog treats.

The deadline for video submissions is August 15, 2008. For more information, visit www.freshpet.com