Supermodel Gisele Bundchen wore Dolce & Gabbana for her Thursday night wedding to New England Patriots quarterback Tom Brady – and so did her three dogs.

UsMagazine.com reports that Bundchen donned an ivory lace strapless gown with a trumpet skirt, long train, and floor-length veil, while her three dogs wore matching Dolce & Gabbana floral lace collars.

The couple – who denied engagement rumors as recently as last month – wed at the St. Monica Catholic Church in Santa Monica, Calif., in an intimate ceremony attended by a handful of friends and family, including Brady's 18-month-old son with ex-girlfriend Bridget Moynahan, John Edward Thomas Moynahan.

Bundchen once described her ideal wedding as “a simple ceremony ... I don't like parties, I prefer something more intimate, just for the closest people.”

A friend of the couple, who have been dating since 2006, told Us that Bundchen and Brady are perfect together.

“She's definitely ‘The One,’” the source said. “She really makes him comfortable and just happy.”

This is the first marriage for both.
