

The DogChannel Newswire (04-27-09)

Man helps puppies become guide dogs for the blind; police dog with cancer retires; and other news.

Posted: April 27, 2009, 5 a.m. EDT

Man Helps Puppies Become Guide Dogs for the Blind

Evan Horowitz doesn't look forward to the ride home after he returns a dog that has been entrusted to him for a year by the Leader Dogs for the Blind program, the Daily Press (Va.) reports.

Read now >>

Police Dog With Cancer in Her Jaw Retires

Reggie has spent the past two years sniffing out narcotics around Douglas County, Oregon, assisting in the arrest of more than 30 people on drug charges, the News-Review (Ore.) reports.

Read now >>

Seeing Red: The Glowing Puppy That Glows in the Dark

At first glance, this sweet Beagle puppy seems nothing out of the ordinary. But when she is lit with an ultraviolet light, the astonishing dog glows in the dark, DailyMail.co.uk reports.

Read now >>

L.A.'s Animal Services Manager Resigns

Los Angeles' animal services manager announced Friday that he is resigning his post, the Los Angeles Times reports.

Read now >>

Failing to Pick Up the Poo Will Still Cost $100

Baltimore City Council is reconsidering the fine for dog owners who let their dogs run off leash, but don't throw away those plastic bags just yet, BaltimoreSun.com reports.

Read now >>