

The DogChannel Newswire (05-27-09)

More auto insurers going to the dogs; dog park promotes green waste disposal; and other news.

Posted: May 27, 2009, 5 a.m. EDT

More Auto Insurers Are Going to the Dogs

At least four U.S. auto insurers have added — at no extra cost to customers — coverage of $500 to $1,000 for pets injured or killed in car accidents, USA Today reports.

Read now >>

Dog Park Promotes Green Waste Disposal

Dog poop isn't the only thing that's biodegradable at one Chicago dog park. Puptown in Uptown's Margate Park is now home to three artsy-looking doggie waste-bag dispensers, stocked with biodegradable bags, the Chicago Sun-Times reports.

Read now >>

Dying Bulldog Saves Owner From Grand Rapids Fire

A Michigan man's decision not to end his terminally ill Bulldog's life has ended up saving his own, The Associated Press reports.

Read now >>

Dogs Take Their Bows, Wows 'Legally'

Pooches go from rescue shelter to stardom in "Legally Blonde the Musical," the Chicago Sun-Times reports.

Read now >>

If Vick Is Sincere, Give Him a Chance to Prove It

Michael Vick will soon pay off his debt to society, which earns him freedom, not necessarily another slot in the NFL. What should his ticket back be? Many pet lovers will never forgive. Others talk about proper expressions of remorse, whatever those may be, The New York Times reports.

Read now >>