

The DogChannel Newswire (09-17-09)

Tests shows lead in pet supplies; angelic devil dog creates lifetime of memories; and other news.

Posted: September 17, 2009, 5 a.m. EDT

Foxes, Cats Used as Live Bait in London Dogfighting Circles

Police are investigating reports that urban foxes are being caught in London then used as bait for fighting dogs. Gangs with dogs and nets have been spotted hunting in woodland in the Rotherhithe area of the capital, Sky News reports.

Read now >>

Angelic Devil Dog Creates Lifetime of Memories

Nora Bergman eagerly anticipated finally getting a dog. And so she adopted Mandy, an adorable 2-week-old mixed breed. But as Bergman soon discovered, her new dog's angelic face never revealed the mania behind her countenance, the San Francisco Chronicle reports.

Read now >>

Tests Show Lead in School, Pet Supplies

An environmental research group says tests on 60 back-to-school supplies and 400 pet products found nearly a quarter of them contained lead, the Chicago Tribune reports.

Read now >>

Pet Abusers Are Losers, Shout the Tattooed Rescuers

When "Rescue Ink Unleashed" begins airing Sept. 25 on the National Geographic Channel, the world of animal rescuing will never look the same again, USA Today reports.

Read now >>