Jennifer Aniston is worried about the health of one of her best and most loyal friends: her 14-year-old dog, Norman.

"Norman is old and hasn't been doing well," a source tells OK! magazine. "She's terrified her best friend could soon be gone."

Aniston, who is once again dating musician John Mayer, is so concerned about the Corgi-terrier mix's well-being that she recently hired a doggie masseuse.

"When Norman started having joint stiffness and had a hard time getting up and walking, Jen hired a personal masseuse for him," says the friend.

"He's doing a lot better, but Jen is extremely paranoid about something else going wrong," says the insider. "Losing Norman would be a big blow."

Aniston next films are "The Baster" and "The Bounty," both due out next year.
