

Britney Spears' Dog Ruins Photo Shoot

OK! Magazine says Britney Spears let her new puppy damage a pricey dress.

Britney Spears, who was voted the world's worst celebrity dog owner last year, continues to get more bad press when it comes to her dogs.

OK! Magazine reports that during a scheduled tell-all interview and photo shoot in a Hollywood Hills, Calif., home last week, Spears "let" her new Yorkshire Terrier puppy poop on a $6,700 Zac Posen gown.

But the former pop princess's bizarre behavior didn't end with that episode. Spears also reportedly wiped her greasy hands on a pink designer dress, and fled the shoot wearing more than $14,000 worth of OK!'s borrowed clothing.

"What we experienced was a young girl who is desperately in need of help. And sadly she has surrounded herself with too many people who are pretending that nothing is wrong," OK! said in excerpts from its story that hit newsstands last Friday. OK! also called the photos "unpublishable."

The usually celebrity-friendly magazine said Spears had arranged the interview in order to burnish her image since shaving off her hair and entering rehab in the months since her high-profile separation from dancer Kevin Federline.

Spears had been voted the worst celebrity dog owner last year during an online poll of readers by The New York Dog and The Hollywood Dog magazines.
